Red Flags for Parents

- 🚩 A parent who is continuing to live his own personal athletic dream through his child has not released his child to the game.
- 🚩 If a parent tends to share in the credit when the child has done well in sport or has been victorious, he is too involved.
- 🚩 On one hand, it is only natural for a parent to attempt to steer his child through the rough spots in life in order to enhance the child's enjoyment of the athletic experience. But, athletics offer an excellent opportunity to allow kids to learn to solve their own problems.
- 🚩 If a parent is trying to continue to coach his child when the child probably knows more about the game than the parent does, he has not released the youth athlete.
- 🚩 A parent should realize that he is taking everything too seriously and has not released the child to the activity when:
  - He is nervous before his child's game.
  - He has a difficult time bouncing back after his child's team suffers a defeat.
  - He makes mental notes during a game so he can give his child advice at the conclusion of the game.
  - He becomes verbally critical of an official.
